Book 1 in the Inspirational Romantic Suspense Series, Alicia Yu, FBI. Color of Money, book 2. Glitter and Sorrow, book 3.

Pacifist Mennonite social worker Nora Martin is on the verge of opening a residential facility for first-time offenders. After years of planning, she'll finally be able to rescue young men from the violence of prison...or what has been their only other option, the violence of the military.

But then a stranger in camouflage and combat boots marches through her front door and claims to own her house. And he's not interested in letting Nora change it.

Who is Petty Officer Jacob Schwartz, and why does no one in the close-knit town of French Lick, Indiana want to acknowledge that he exists? What are they hiding? What had seemed like a safe community is now full of secrets and old heartaches, and Nora is caught in the dangerous middle. Her only ally is her best friend, FBI agent Alicia Yu (who readers first met in Glitter and Sorrow), but even Alicia can't protect her from the way Nora's heart races every time Jacob's in the room.

Can she trust a man in uniform?

Nora and Jacob's choices have taken them down different paths, but God may still show them a safe way back.
